Brisbane Lions goalkeeper Nigel Lownds (left) is unli-kely to play again this season after he was bashed at a Brisbane Hotel.

Lownds is in hospital with a broken nose, jaw, and cheekbone. He also required surgery after Doctors at one stage feared he may lose his sight in one eye. He will be in hospital for another two weeks.

The incident happend after Lownds went to the hotel for a drink after training last Thursday week. It is a tragic blow for the keeper as he was playing well and was only six games off his 100

Police are investigating the incident and Lions officials are ow formulating fund-raising plans to help Lownds family.

Long wait, now this ...

The left leg of South Melbourne Hellas goal-keeper Lou Tsigaras is fractured in three places after last Sunday's match against Newcastle KB United at Middle Park.

Tsigaras was rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital when he was injured in a collision with Newcastle's David Lowe.

Tsigaras played in Hellas's senior team a few times when the club was still in the State League but had to wait six years before getting another chance a few weeks ago.

He lacked the true strikers real greed for goals often being content with making good runs off-the-ball and setting others up for goal chances.

good, talented, experienced player.

At a time when the cry all around us is "youthl youth!" it is nice to see the success coming the way of Honeyman who has seen so many ups and downs at West Adelaide.

It would be interesting to try and recall the number of coaches under whom Honeyman has played during his six years at West Adelaide.

Starting with myself in 1977, there next was Billy Birch, followed by Tom Forde, both local men.

They were followed by John Margaritis and Jim Adam, and then came the return of Birch.

— that sounds like a good name for a melodrama and as always there was plenty drama during Billy's second reign, until he was succeeded by Peter Jaksa who in turn finally made way for current encumbent, Alan Vest.

It was in season 1978 under Graham Honeyman Margaritis till the half way stage, and then Jim Adam, that Honeyman experienced a big highlight in his career. That was the year that West Adelaide lifted the Philips league title and Honeyman was a big factor in the win along with fellow midfielders, Peter Boyle and Neil McGachey.

along with fellow midfielders, Peter Boyle and Neil McGachey.
Boyle and Honeyman the two skilful, hard running and competitive Scots, flanked linkman McGachey, whose hard tackling and accurate long passing provided just the service the two Scots needed.
The title win was a remarkable achievement when you consider that when Adam took over in mid season the team was below half way.

In the lean years since those heady days Honeyman and goalkeeper Martyn Crook have given consistent, skilful performances while everything else was crumbling around them and the club was threatened with relegation and some said, even possible extinction. Now these two stalwarts are joined again by Neil McGachey, finally recovered from a cripping injury and under vest and an inspection of new talent club seems to be at last out of the dark tunnel where it spent the last two gloomy years.

It's a financial flop for Spain

The 1982 World Cup finals generated millions of dollars - but left hosts Spain with a sense of loss.

Half-empty stadiums, restaurants and hotels with inflated prices and few clients and the national team eliminated in the second round led some in the host country to call the tournament a financial and promotional failure.

"In this sad World Cup, there were two clear winners and one great loser," said the Madrid Daily Diario 16. "The winner is FIFA and the publicity company West Nally and the big loser is Soain."

Spain:

The Cup organising committee, which for months before the immediate the railed a $9.8 million profit from tickets and three special national lotteries, admitted its aim was to break even.

An estimated 15 billion people watched the matches on television and 19 companies, including Coca-Cola, Gillette and Seiko paid West Nally handsomely for billboards in the stadiums seen on television.

on television.
From that revenue plus souvenirs and use by other companies of World Cup symbols, West Nally is reported to have made a profit of $19.6 million and FIFA expects about $3.92 million for itself.

itself.

Gerärdo Gonzalez, spokesman for Spain's Secretary of State for Tourism, said his office never harboured any Illusions about an immediate profit from the World Cup.

"It was ridiculous to think we could state an event of this kind and not spend money," he said. "The benefits will be long-term. Spain was on the lips of hundreds of millions of people around the world for nearly a year. We are bound to benefit."

Deals requiring foreign fans to shell out up to nearly $4,900 each went unsold, "We may have over-priced our package deals," a Mundiespana spokesman said.

How the powerful pull the strings

About 41,500 fans packed the tiny Sarria Stadium here to watch Italy and Argentina play in their second-round World Cup game.

More than a thousand fans were stranded outside. Judging from the 15,000 or so Italian fans at the game, many of whom just drove over for a few days, it would have been pretty easy to sell out the cavernous Nou Camp Stadium, about a 10-minute walk away across the great Avenida de Ladiagonal.

The day before the Argentina-Italy game, about 5,000 fewer fans were scattered throughout that 105,000-seat stadium – said to be Europe's largest — to watch Poland play Belgium.

Poland and Belgium are interesting teams and played an entertaining game. But these two teams just do not draw well outside of Warsaw and Brussels. So why not simply switch stadiums or play both games in Nou Camp, since there was nothing going on there anyway?

not simply switch stadiums or play both games in Nou Camp, since there was nothing going on there anyway?

Welcome to the world of FIFA and international soccer politics.

FIFA, known universally by its French acronym, has 140 member nations.

Belgium, backed by the Soviet Union, which was in the same second-round group, refused to go along with FIFA president Joao Havelange's idea to switch the stadiums the two Barcelona groups were playing in.

Havelange reasoned, logically, that the group comprising Italy, Brazil (Havelange's native country) and Argentina would sell many more tickets than the group with the Poles, Belgians and Soviets. Besides the fact that tens of thousands of Italians and Brazilians were here for the cup, Argentina's young superstar Diego Maradona would be playing for FC Barcelona next season, and there obviously was more than passing local interest in his performances.

special role within FIFA, and so "soa special role within Firm, and so meone came up with this propaganda stunt — why not make the five former World Champions and the host country the six seeds?"

That idea went over big with the Spanish tournament organisers, who interpreted it as the five old World Cup winners plus the new one. As for Britain's special FIFA role, it is interesting on another level, and also explains why the British have four separate FIFA members: England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales — and all but Wales qualified for this year's World Cup.

FIFA is historically very sensitive about Britain's role, since in the 1920s, 30s and '40s it withdrew from the world body twice for a total of 24 years for political reasons and England didn't even bother to join FIFA until 1955, when the international group was well into its second year. That idea went over big with the Spa-

The other tree British countries waited until 1910. What gives the British their power within FIFA today is the continued strength of the autonomous but closely related International Football Association Board, which has four members each from each of the four British FIFA "countries", and four from the rest of the world.

Even for those years when Britain was out of FIFA, one form or another of this arrangement continued. The Board is important because it controls the rules of the game, organises and runs international tournaments and regulates the movement of allowers between countries.

tournaments and regulates the movement of players between countries.

So the Belgians didn't have a prayer of being seeded ahead of England for the World Cup, despite their better performance in recent years, and they weren't about to be inconvenienced by a last-minute stadium switch.

Fortunately for them, the Soviets were just as stubborn about not switching, which brings up another interesting aspect of FIFA politics.

just as studdorn about not switching, which brings up another interesting aspect of FIFA politics.

Much like the International Olympic Committee and the United Nations — both of which, incldentally, have fewer members — FIFA is increasingly dominated by a Third World and Soviet Bloc majority.

While the International Board makes decisions on rules and tournaments, the whole body votes on things such as membership, how many teams will be in the World Cup, where it will take place, and so on.

To join, but so far it has been unsuccessful. The Europeans turned the Israelis down, citing logistical problems but did let Israelis which is problems but did let Israelis down, commended to the proper of EIFA—unit poor in a European qualifying the proper of the Port of the World Cup.

There are other ways in which politics affects the World Cup seene. Josef Muber of Viennas's Kurler'n ewspaper described four instances where penalty kicks were either called or denied in questionable instances; "the referee carried hometown Spain into the second round, and kept two penalties from the Soviet Union so Brazil wouldn't stumble in its first game."

The coach of Scotland's eliminated earn, Jock Stein, wondered about refereeing assignments even before the tournament started, worrying that the American referee assigned his first game with New Zealand might be short of international experience. Then questioning how neutral one could expect a Latin referee to be in Scotland's match with Brazil and an enstem European referee in its encounter with the Soviet Union.

Since refereeing assignments are by nature so political, you might expect that the FIFA officials who make these assignments might study their history and political science a bit more closely.

Surely the Austrians were surprised when for their second-round match with France, the referee was Hungarian and the two linesmen were a Czechoslovak and a Yugoslav — all three officials from countries that not all that long ago were part of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

It would have been simple enough to assign Latin Americans or Third World officials, but who is to say what considerations went into choosing that group? Finally, FIFA is important as the final arbiter of any disputes that arise, and one of the most heated ones revolved around the scandalous performance of passive soccer that West Germany and Austria put on during their first-round encounter.

The Germans won, 1-9, ensuring bott earns a place in the

The Germans won, 1-8, ensuring both teams a place in the second round ahead of the popular Algerian team which defeated West Germany and Chile. The Algerians lodged a protest, demanding that both teams be fined and that they be placed in the second round.

It is little wonder that European fans are staying away from soccer in dro-ves. Some of the second round matches shown 'Live' had me doing something I thought I would never ever do. I actually ended up reading the morning paper and doing the crossword puzzles while the matches were in progress!

At least I managed to solve the puzzles, which was more than some of the teams could do. They were simply unable to solve the puzzles; which was more than some of the teams could do. They were simply unable to solve the puzzles confronting them on the field and presented us with dull spectacles indeed.

It is pointless to talk of changing the laws of the game to make the game more exciting. That is up to the players. The ball is clearly at their feet and if they can control it, it is up to them to play it. The Brazilians, despite their elimination at the hands of Italy, and some of the lesser lights of Reputations were won and lost in Spain over the four weeks of the World Cup.

Diego Maradona and Zico provide the perfect example. They came to the World Cup like two gunslingers riding into town for a showdown—the title of the "greatest footballer on earth" at stake.

Maradona's best remembered contribution will be the red card he received from a crude hack at Brazilian substitute Battsta as the 1978 winners made their exit.

The stocky Argentine gave fleeting glimpses of his undoubted talent but the Barcelona bank manager must have serious doubts about the club's $7.55 million acquisition.

The World Cup, and Italian football in particular, will forever be indebted to the avuncular Enzo Bearzot.

After years of banging his head against the Italian defensive wall, Bearzot finally convinced his players that their glorious talent could make them successful and fun to watch. In the past, Italy has been as bleak as an English holiday resort during the rainy season. Under Bearzot, the sun finally came out.

TOP officers of the Federation of International Football Associations (FIFA) have called for "more offensive play" and better stadium conditions to reverse declining attendance at soccer matches.

In a report prepared for FIFA's congress last Friday in Madrid, FIFA president Joso Havelange and general secretary Sepp Blatte also denounced "exorbitant" prices paid for some soccer players.

"It has occer pueves.
"It has often been said that football is experiencing a crisis now, but this does not seem to be the case, fortunately, if football is considered at the world level," said the report, signed by Mr Havelange and Mr Blatter.

"By a stroke of luck, football has not yet suffered too much from this phenomenon," it said. But it added that many individual clubs are in financial difficulty.

The two-day congress also decided to meet again next year in Mexico during the world youth soccer championships there.

The session said a uniform code accepted by the Federation of international Football Associations (FIFA) would be "an opportunity and a convenience" for the sport, in which rule violations are punished by a wide variety of sanctions in different countries.

Brazil lacked coaching? Ridiculous!

Giacinto Facchetti (left) is too slow to stop Brazilian wizard Jairzinho in the 1970 World Cup final. At right is Italy's Burgnich (No. 2) trying to keep a tight rein on Pele.

By DAVID PONSONBY

There's no country in the world which can match the technical and practical application of coaching and tactics employed by Brazil.

The Brazilians have a technical committee which amasses volumes of literature on the game, on physiology, on opposing players and even referees!

Hours are spent practising set plays and trends contrary to the comments on ABC TV from Liverpool striker Craig Johnson.

BBC football presenter and ex-Arsenal and Scotland goalkeeper, Bob Wilson attended a Brazilian training session en route to Argentina in 1978. Watching free kicks bend around a row of dummies he voluntered to get a "goalie's eye view". He spent most of the time picking balls out of the back of the net! He had never experienced shots of such venom or precision. "Natural" players do practice and to organize them-selves tactically. The World Cup is not a travelling show like the Harlem Globetrotters. After digesting masses of literature the next step for the Brazilians is to communicate ideas to their players. The Brazilians found players did not relate to noughts and crosses on black-boards! They did to coloured discs or bottletops with their numbers on. The best idea was to show

The best idea was to show the players with photographic colour slides the tactical depl-oyment of the opponents. As many as three coaches from the technical committee would take photographs of op-ponents.

The key to the 1970 World Cup final was a slide showing a ball passing behind the heels of Italy's unconcerned Faccheti who was watching his man. Jairzinho had played the 1970 World Cup as a right winer, even though his club position was closer to centre forward. Against Italy he took his marker, Facchetti, to the unfamiliar territory of inside left. Other players, notably right back Carlos Alberto, were encouraged to exploit the vacant space.

Claudio Coutinho was a member of the Brazilian Tech-nical Delegation in 1970, along with Zagalo, Carlos Alberto Parreira and Chirol.
The training methods of the 1970 outfit have been published both internally in Portuguese and internationally through the 1970 F.I.F.A. Technical Report. Unfortunately neither has a wide circulation.
The reports were prepared and contributed by Carlos Albeto Parreira. Parreira is a professor of physical education from Brazil and studied at a German football coaching course as well as travelling through England. He and Coutinho are fluent in several languages and study literature on fitness and football from all over the world. Much of the material derives from the Hungarians, most conveniently available in English in Arpad Csanadi's "Soccer". Some of the physiology has been up-dated from American Some of the physiology has been up-dated from American Soundinary well-known names to these coaches.

To say that Brazil suffered in this World Cup from a lack of coaching not only is a gross oversimplification it also is false.

Have any Victorian teams bothered to check on the progress of this youngster, in fact do they know he exists? Do the Victorian teams know that a number of the Institute boys are not signed with clubs and obviously will be available on departure from the Institute.

NSW clubs are constantly viewing these boys and are well aware of their ability and progress. Victorian clubs would be well advised to set up a system of monitoring the progress of these talented youngsters.

The present dimate of lifting players from lower Metropolitan League divisions to Philips League or State League is not good enough. The gap is too wide and I venture to suggest that the progress of those players in the lower leagues is not very well observed or monitored by the upper cchelons of the coaching staff at the respective clubs.

Philips Challenge Cup loss to Lions at Perry Park.

Apart from the Charity Shield win at Richlands earlier this season, Hakoah has lost many important games in Brisbane over the past two years and last week's loss ended its chances of a clean sweep of trophies this season. Sydney City rarely performs to expectations when in Brisbane and in this match it never really reached top gear. After Lions had scored three minutes before halftime, City never showed any variation in attack in the second half in its attempt to break the tough Lions defence.

Its cause, or for that matter that of Lions, was not helped by yet another dismal Brisbane refereeing performance and young official Col Amos, who Sydney City seems always to strike when in Brisbane, finally got to coach Eddie Thomson and rather than his usual vocal sideline outbursts to strike when in Brisbane, finally got to coach Eddie Thomson and rather than his usual vocal sideline outbursts was ordered back to the was reduced to just faughing at the inconsistencles. Lions' Goe Gilroy was not as passive and at one stage he was ordered back to the peen-look of the constitution of the constitutio dominated by defences. Youngster Grant Lee, who came in for the injured Jim Patikas, had two clear-cut opportunities in the first half, but bombed both and Williamson had an excellent chance but controlled instead of hitting the ball first time and had his shot blocked. Lions' captain Col Bennett and replacement Ron Millman, who was only on the field five minutes, also were shown yellow cards for incidents which paled into insignificance compared with some of the other tackles which went unreprimanded during the second half.

The Lions defence showed no mercy as it continually tackled, lunged, blocked and officed to shut down and keep out the Sydney City for warme team's tactics were considered aggressive then the visitors handed out as much as they received and late and offitheball tackles peppered the second half.

The aggression was high-the ball first time and had his shot blocked.

Sydney City should have equalised in the 79th minute when Jim Cant hit the upright but then Lions could have wrapped the match up two minutes later when Ferris played a glorious through ball to Australlan youth squad member Danny Wright but the youngster panicked a little and had his shot saved by Clarke. With the confidence of this win under their belt, Lions look a good chance to retain the cup.

Perhaps the stakes are bigger in the PSL Perhaps there's to much to lose, both for the club and coach Peter Oilerton.

Perhaps that's why the crowds have dropped off and if Makedonia continues to serve up this kind of stuff then it deserves to play in the middle of a near empty stadium.

After only three minutes of the first half, Tony Morsello broke through of the left before floating a neat cross into the Marconi goalmouth. The ball eluded Marconi defence and also Peter Jones who actually missed the ball as it floated across with the net gaping open.

However, Jones more than made up for it with two late goals to sink Marconi and avenue APIA's shattering defeats at this ground in recent months.

Allan Maher, the man who had been solid in recent months in Marconi's goal, contributed to Marconi's downfall. He was indecisive and missed two fairly easy crosses, allowing Jones firstly to head home for the equaliser, the power of the season of

In fact Wilson and Parks looked in for a torid evening, with Hunter and Jankovics always looking dangerous, both both Wilson and Parks were among APIA's best on the night.

Jankovics guided the ball superbly past Parks. It was a gem of a goal and one which certainly looked the winner for marconi until those two late, late goals by Jones. Goals apart, the game rarely rose above moderate heights, with a slippery park and miserable attendance certainly the main contributors to an evening most of us will forget in a hurry.

Sweeper John Spanes took the No. I shirt but the Sydney City defence closed up in front of him and the outfield player was never tested during Clarke's absence. Lions' goal came through a speculative cross by Stephen Hogg, He received a pass down the right wing from Paul Burns and carried the ball a short way before lobbing it into the goalmouth. Hogg may close the speculative control of the second ball for Daunt and such was its rajectory. Clarke had no chance as the ball dropped into the top of the goal. From then on Lions' tactics were simple. They pushed Sydney City's attack to the flanks which forced Watson and Bruce to play high balls into the penalty box. Poter Lauments returns to the South Mel-bourne Hellas goal for the all-Greek derby against Heidelberg-Alexander at the Olympic Village ground on Sunday.

Tsigaras waited for years for his big chance in the PSL, replacing Laumets when it finally came. Now, tragically, he is out for at least the rest of the season.

Heidelberg meanwhile, still is waiting for Chilean international Juan Toro Castillio to arrive. He is from the Magellanes club, but no transfer fee is required for the 31-year-old midfielden. Heidelberg is a point ahead of Hellas and only us with the teams if they hope to take part in the op-four play-offs.

The substitution of the substitution of the midfled. When Tsigaras was injured, shirra went of Stamp.

With Tsigaras out, it is intriguing to contemplate what Helias would do if it also lost Laurnets. Helias's "unofficial" reserve team is South Melbourne Mordialloc, whose goalkeeper is none other than Dennis Boland, who's on loan from Footscray JUST. The Hellas-Heidelberg game, always one of the highlights of the season, again will feature cousins Arthur Xanthopoulos and Theo sclemidis in opposition. They should confront each other quite often for Xanthopoulos, playing sweeper for Hellas, will have to cope with Sclemidis when he comes into the box for high balls at the near post. Heidelberg, looks for Selemidis from corners and long throw-ins.

In the past, Hellas usually played a marking game against Heidelberg, amed at nullifying Gary Cole and Jamie Paton, as well as the midfleiders. Hellas is unlikely to play that way under Docherty, so it should be an open, free-flowing game, with victory earned by the better forward line.

Following the wonderful start for which coach Alan Vest must take considerable credit, the side is now proving to be something of a chopping block.

Certainly it will take a minor miracle to enable West to get back into the top four.

Losing two successive games to sides in the bottom of the PSL is not the sort of form to breed optimism.

Milovanovic was unfit to play and was replaced by Angelo Ambrosino, while Christopoulos was moved into defence in the hope he would get through the game.

Only a penalty kick five minutes from the end saved APIA, once the PSL leaders, from humbling defeat at Lam-bert Park. Brisbane City, with only one away win all year, deserve to have recorded its second, but it gave away a penalty which might well have been avoided.

It battered APIA in just about every department until near the end, playing quick and often one touch type of football, and showed on current form that it should be midway up the table and not near the bottom.

APIA Leichhardt's poverty on the day may well have been largely due to the fact that it had to play a midweek PSL; tutre against Marconi in the Philips Cup APIA's coach Peter Wilson was well aware of the fact that his Queensland opponent was fresh, but there was nothing he could do other than give a fine example to keep Brisbane City at bay.

Wilson's obvious strategy was to allow the visitors to come forward and attack and then try to beat them with counter punches: The first part succeeded. It was only some good play down the right wing which enabled APIA to keep the slate clean in the first half, during which time just about most of the play was in Leichhardt's half.

Passes went astray and Brisbane men benefited by collecting the ball and played very cleverly, but only up to about the penalty area. Willie Conner was most prominent, putting as much effort into this game as two would for the entire match.

Robert De Ceglia was well involved right from the start and he was only put off his stride by some well timed tackles from Hermiston. He had to have his ankle strapped midway during the first half and was eventually replaced at half time by Brian Godzik. Godzik had a couple of nice runs but never really got in-volved.

One point about Brisbane City that showed up was that it never was put off by the bumpy surface in a genuine team effort.

Bobby Parks snapped up a nice Palinkas shot early, and later Bevan Bohan first timed his shot just over the bar.

Eleven minutes into the second half, Peter Jones went close when he met a Marshall Soper cross from Paul Carter's pass, but Brisbane City drew first blood five minutes later when Joe Palinkas scored following some god work by McVeigh and Conner. The move was capped by a stunning drive.

Jones showed some good touches throughout but it was Frank Liddell's dominance in the air which kept him in check.

Soon after, Bevan Bohan headed over from a corner, followed by Conner effort which hit the crossbar.

At this stage Peter Wilson was starting to drag his leg, as he did towards the end at Marconi Stadium on Wednesday night, but he kept his team moving.

Tony Pezzano made a brave save from Jones from close in and it seemed that Brisbane City was going to go home with both points in the bag.

But then Liddell fouled Mar-shall Soper and Carter soared from the resultant penalty to make it 1-1.

"We could have played for five days and we still wouldn't have scored", was how Adei-aide City coach John Perrin summed up his team's 0-2 loss to Lions at Richlands last weekend. And unfortunately for the Lions defence that was no real reflection on their in-vincibility. It was a candid and honest appraisal of an in-effective and unimaginative Adelaide City attack.

And the forward line included new English import Les Carter a former England youth player, but to be fair to the youngster, he still was suffering from the effects of jetlag after arriving in Australia only four days earlier.

Carter showed only flashes of skill but under the circumstances that could be a ray of hope for the relegation worked Active factor of hope for the relegation worked Active flashed City fans. Two minutes later Ron Mil-Iman cracked in a shot from a narrow angle, after good lead-up from Alan Niven and Billy Williamson and a second half routing looked a distinct possi-bility.

But the second half was little more than a bore. Adelaide City had three chances to get on the scoresheet but could not put a shot on target while the Lions' attack persistently fell foul of the offside trap.

Probably the biggest highlight of the game was the fact that Lions went onto the park with six players aged under 22 years then brought on another as substitute. And none of the players concerned—Tony Scanlan, Jackson, Hogg, Mark Atmore, Calvin Daunt, Danny Wright or John Ogden fell drastically short of the required standard and in fact

Darby quits as Tassie director

Steve Darby, the Tas-manian director of coach-ing, has resigned after serving only 18 months of

"For various reasons con-nected with soccer, I was find-ing it impossible to do the job in a manner which I felt it de-served. I felt it was best, therefore, to resign," said

"I couldn't condone or be a 'yes' man to some of the things that were going on."

Darby first came to Tas-mania in 1980 as coach of State League side Devonport. As director of coaching, ne coach ed the Tasmanian State of Origin team to three wins out of four games against the likes of the Victorian youth team and South Melbourne Hellas.

This season, Darby has been playing with State League (South) team, South Hobart, while still performing his duties as State coaching director.

He is uncertain of his future.
"Twe had one unofficial offer from a Tasmanian club, but this has nothing to do with my resignation In fact, I would refuse any coaching offers from within Tasmania. I'd have to think about anything that came from the mainland, however."

Darby is disappointed that things came to a head in this way, especially since several of his ideas were coming to fruition. The formation of State of origin' team, work with traines teachers in the physical education colleges, and a fitness program of State youth players are but three.

Steve Darby is the second full-time director of coaching that Tasmania has had. The previous incumbent was Denis Ford.

Ballarat goes indoors

The first Victorian indoor soccer competition on a regular baels kicks off on August 3 and is attracting entries from teams as far away as Ballarat.

The organisers, Soccerdrome, were surprised to find that a country team had entered but are pleased to learn of the popularity of their competition throughout the state.

Local businesses have shown a keen interest in sponsoring teams and the competition itself and the organisers are confident that prize money and magnificent trophies will be secured.

Heidelberg appeared unable to react, especially since feared striker Gary Cole could not shake off an excellent Arno Bertogna, having a dream season at the back of the Wolves defence.

O'Connor could — or rather should — have made it three with 16 mintues remaining when he hit the crossbar with a violent drive after sending Olive the wrong way with a delightful feint.

A Rob Gramsbergen handball and a comedy of errors from a free kick were enough to sink Sun-shine and give Albion an important victory in this local derby.

With five minutes of a tough, fast first half left bennie Ferrie crossed, kerin Lloyd rose high and headed goalward and Gramsbergen handled with keeper Danny Lacock beaten. Bob Nesbitt, Albion's usual penalty taker, had taken a knock minutes earlier so right back Gary Cutler strode to the spot and gave Albion a 1-0 half time lead.

Sunshine sealed its own fate in the 80th minute. It won a free just outside the Albion area. Norrie Pate tried to roll the ball back for Rob Nelson to shoot. In hipped John Creany to send a long ball downfield and Kevin Lloyd broke free into a one-on-one with Dennis Masseni, nearly slipping the ball past the stranded Sunshine keeper.

The Shiners though were not without their chances. The finishing problem which has beset them for most of the most problem as a wident as league season was evident as Norrie Pate, once, and Roger Bain, twice, failed to convert.

"This win was worth four points to us," said Albion as-sistant coach John Innes.

"We started the day two points behind Sunshine and a loss would have been a dis-aster. We ended up above the Shiners on goal difference and the win will do a lot for the confidence of our lads.

"We're up against Ring-wood this week. Earlier in the season we came back with just ten men against Ringwood to wipe out a 2-0 deficit so this win against Sunshine should give us the boost we need to go on from here."

Miguel Romero, having a lean time of late, came into his own scoring four times from close quarters. I'wo penalties were designed to the leaders of the leaders. Colin Bartlett, always the thorn in the opposition's play, completed the rout with a soie elfort down the right wing. The West Brunswick goal-keeper got his 'marching orders' from excellent referee Jim Brennan, in the 64th minute, which did nothing for the leaders' cause.
All credit to West Brunswick for giving their all to the linal whistle. But this was South's day.

This follow up to the World Cup Final saw the Italians again victorious.

Enwinger strategies.

This follow up to the worns cup's managain victorious.

Fawkner started slowly, then in the 30th minute Bruno Sabidussi, through some fine football, shot for goal but hit the crossbar.

Fawkner forced a corner in the 35th minute with Carlo Sabidussi crossing to Bruno Sabidussi who capitalised and headed it in at the near post.

Then Andy Bozikas, from 20 metres let fly with a right foot shot that gave the keeper no chance, to give Fawkner a 2-0 lead. Richmond fought back through Bruce Young who received a crossfield ball to beat two opponents and the keeper to make the score 2-1.

but it was Manienti and Tuffield who never stopped, giving Richmond's defence extra work. The work of these two helped Sabidussi complete his hat-trick.

Richmond continued to fight on, but with the score at 4-1 it seemed a hopeless task. Then Curcija netted to make it 5-1 and a good convincing win for Fawkner, which surely must earn a place in the 1883 State League now.

Springvale's John Patten, then with Ajax, which surely must earn a place in the 1883 State League now.

NSW State League with ALEX VESIC

Croatia lost a point at Mona Park (it has a habit of doing that against Auburn), Black-town subdued Monaro, Sutherland rocked Rockdale, Manly won the derby at Cromer Park against Canterbury and Riverwood was a trifle lucky to escape with a point against Availa.

Bankstown moved off the bottom after a 1-1 draw with "draw specialist" Polonia to conclude the weekend's State League games, but it still is anyone's guess as to who will make the top four at the end of the 26 rounds, or who is to drop down to the First Division next

A game of two halves with Croatia being the better side in the first and the home side, Auburn, in the second, Croatia, the leading State League side, has a solid defence, but its front line is yet to show its true form.

Auburn, the side with no great illusions about 1882 after a poor start to the season, showed respect for its much first half and almost paid first half and almost paid first half and almost paid of the season, showed respect for its much first half and almost paid of the season o

Despite the scoreline, it was an entertaining game with the second half providing most of the spills and thrills. Djukic replaced Rezo, then Carrizzo came on for Coyne in an effort to lift Croatia, but with little change in play, while Kinsey came on for luckless Allan for Auburn.

Branko Krstic started the move which led to Blacktown's first in the 19th minute. His pass found Johnstone with some space on the wing, the cross followed and Paul Kirwan was on the spot to head pust Caputo.

Only six minutes later young Johnstone was in the thick of things again as he received a pass from Michael Quarmby before passing to Burrows, whose shot on the turn beat Capute to make it 2-0.

whose shot on the turn beat Caputo to make it 2-0. In the 29th minute Monaro came back after a neat cross from Ian Heywood. Santolin, the tail Monaro sweeper, was in the middle to not the ball home past James. With the score tight at 2-1 to Blacktown the fireworks started early in the second half with both sides committed to attack.

Bruce James made a fine save from Walter Vaieri in the 60th, then was beaten by the same player some ten minutes later, but the goal was disallowed for offside.

Blacktown came back at Monaro in the closing stages to clinch its win. With five minutes remaining Burrows beat three players before smacking the ball past Caputo from some 15 metres to make it 3-1, then Johnstone and Kirwan combined to set up a scoring opportunity for Clive Campbell in the last minute, which Blacktown's newcomer took with ease.

The win rakes Blacktown to which Blacktown's newcomer took with ease.

The win takes Blacktown to within striking distance of Croatia and with the game against the State League against the State League leader coming up on August 14, it is now evident that Black-town has not given up hope of winning the premiership.

"We wuz robbed" came a cry from Avala's camp following their 22 draw with Riverwood at Hurstville.

With 19 minutes remaining in this match and Riverwood and Avala at one goal a piece an incident provoked the above comments from the coach of Avala, Steve Lalic. Stoddart, Riverwood's schemer, took a shot at goal from way out. The ball suddenly dipped as it approached the goal line and Peter Ahrens hurriedly snathed the ball from under crosses. The same of the country of

That decision was disputed by Avala players, but to no avail.

In the last seconds of the match, Avala snatched an equaliser through Steve Del-ler, following a corner kick.

Deller's header beat Gis-bourne to give Avala the point.

"It was the worst piece of refereeing I have seen for many years," sounded Avala's coach after the match. "We received four yellow cards and a red card and Riverwood arms off coult free in a game. a red card and Riverwood came off scott free, in a game which had a few rough moments but never one-way hacking as it appears by the referees decisions.

"He (the referee) had the audacity to ask me after the game which one of my players he sent off. Can you imagine it?" said Lalic, still shaken by some of Mr. Tooke's decisions.

some of Mr. Tooke's decisions.
"At one stage during the first half it was Lembryk who committed a foul and he (the referee) booked Vujinovic received his second card in the 80th minute and was sent off. If the referee knew what he was doing it would have been only the first offence for Vujinovic," remarked Avala's coach.

coach.

In a game which was reminiscent of their first encounter at Knight Park, Avala appeared to be more than holding appeared to be more than holding their own against a much more fancied opponent, and looked beaten with ten minutes to go. Down to ten men and down 1-2, Avala came back to make the 2-2 in the closing stages of this match. At Knight Park last April, it was Riverwood who equalised in the last minute to make it 2-2.

David Smith gave Riv-erwood the lead in the 22nd minute, while Branko Karanfi-

Manly 3 Canterbury 2

(Hall 157).

Manly led twice during the first half but Canterbury managed to bounce back and even the score before Barry Lock clinched the issue with a fine goal some 19 minutes from time.

It was an evenly contested game with Manly having the slightest of edges at Cromer Park.

Van Helden shot Manly into an early lead, after only eight minutes. Stuart Regan provid-ed the cross which led to Van Helden's goal. Four minutes later Titilas made it 1-1, then Manly bounced back to go one up again.

This time it was Van Helden This time it was Van Helden who provided the service and Regan the finishing touch to give Manly a slender lead. The lead lasted only three minutes for Arnold was on the spot to pick up a rebound off the crossbar and make it 2-2.

Four goals after 27 minutes!

However, the fireworks almost ended there and then. Both sides tightened their defences and the game looked destined to end in a draw until Lock drove the ball from just inside the box and at an angle into the top far corner past ElZein to make it 3-2.

It was a deserved win for Manly, who showed a little more enterprise and better shooting on the day. With a little more luck Manly could have won by a better margin. Twice Manly players hit the woodwork and once a goal by Van Helden was cancelled off for offside.
